

Chip Flory

Chip joined Pro Farmer as a floor reporter for Futures World News in January 1988 after graduating from Iowa State University with a degree in Ag Journalism. He spent 3 years reporting from the floors of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange as Bureau Chief for FWN.

Chip moved to the Pro Farmer headquarters in 1991 where he started as Electronic Services Editor. With Pro Farmer, he served as Sr. Market Analyst, General Manager, Editor of the company's flagship newsletter for 17 years, Editorial Director and is now Editor Emeritus for Pro Farmer.

Chip is the host of Farm Journal Media's issue- and market-driven AgriTalk radio. Each hour airs live on stations across the country and on the free "AgriTalk" app. Chip is also the Farm Journal Economist, providing market insights for readers in each issue of the company's flagship magazine, Farm Journal.

Chip grew up on a farm in the east-central Iowa community of Oxford Junction. He has three grandchildren, two grown and married children, and he and his wife Sue live in Denver, Iowa.
